A pleasant spoken young man named W. H. Killeby, who has been training horses at the corrais in this city for the last sixty days, went back to California last evening on the Southern Pacific along with J. S. Bransford, the sheriff of Plumas county. Sheriff Bransford arrived here yesterday morning with extradition papers for Killeby that were based upon an indictment for assault with intent to murder, found by the Pinmas county grand jury in November. Killeby is accused of trying to shoot a man named Peter Lynch. Killeby ran a salot of this year's goods.
